COLLEGE COMMENCEMENTS.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY. ITHACA, N.Y., July 1 .- To-day, the first Commencement Day of Cornell University, opened with a delightful atmosphere and a beautiful, clear sky, as if in unison with the eventful occasion which was about to dawn in the history of this Institution. The Commence-ment exercises went off very satisfactorily. There was a large attendance from all parts of the State. The graduates numbered eight, and at the close of the exercises ates numbered eight, and at the close of the exercises witzes were conferred on the students of all the classes to the amount of $700. No honorary degrees were conferred, and no Latiu was used in any of the ceremonies. At $2 p$, m. the Beard of Trustees had another meeting. Various reports were presented, showing the prosperous condition of the institution. The financhal report showed an estimated income next year of $5,000, with an estimated income next year of $5,000, with an estimated stream of $51,000. The Treasurer's report covers the whole period from the commencement of the institution down to the present time, and shows receipts amounting to $171,510, leaving a cash balance on hand of about $5,000. The amount of gifts to a large amount from Mr. Cornell, were in cash value over $120,000. Among the same is the gift of the stockholders of Cascadilla Place, who presented to the University their interest, amounting to $20,000, in that property as a water Cure. Mr. Cornell owning the balance of the stock it makes Cascadilla Place, in fact, a permanent connection of the University buildings. The further donations are a first-class cylinder printing-press from Hoe Brothers of New-York, valued at over $2,000, and type from George Bruce, Son & Co., valued at $400. The gift of Goldwin Smith's private library, President White's gifts to the library and the art collections, amount to $10,000 in value: the great bell by Mrs. Mary A. White, value over $2,000, and agricultural implements to a considerable amount from various manufacturers. Several additional professors, resident and non resident, were elected_mong whom announced are Chas. E Schaffer of Philadelphia, elected Professor of Mechanics and Director of Machinery.

The indications are, from the students entering, that here will be a freshman's class of between 200 and 300. The numerous additions to the faculty made to-day at the inecting of Trustees were in view of this fact.

In President White's address to the recipients of degrees stress was laid upon the good order observed by the students during the past year, and upon the hearty manner in which the students in general had aided the faculty over the obstacles incident to the initial year.

To-night the Fresident's reception at Cascadilla Place is being held, and bids fair to be one of the most interesting and delightful of these numerous occasions, and gally ends the successful festivities of the Commencement week at Cornell University.

ITHACA, June 30 .- The first occasion of the kind in the history of this, the latest born of the Universities, began on Monday. It is an interesting period to all who have watched its development out of the confusion of inception into the vigor, symmetry and glorious promise that now characterize its position at the termination of the first year of its existence. This feeling has extended to those associated in interest with its career whether in the capacity of Professor or member, imbuing all with faith in its success now and in the future. Over 400 students have availed themselves of its advantages since the opening, and a large number could have been added, but that the ever-increasing thoroughness of the entrance examinations prevented many, while the examinations at the end of the trimester retired many more to the seclusion of home. Thoroughness is the word; thoroughness is the aim of at least one American institution of learning beside West Point; and American institution of learning beside West Point; and those students not coming up to the standard have no alternative but to accept retirement.

The graduating class this year is, of course, quite small, numbering eight only. They are Seniors who came from other colleges at the beginning of the year to take their degrees here. The remaining classes number about as follows: Juniors, 25; Sophamores, 45; Freshmen, 225; Optional, 36; Total, 345. These old class distinctions are to be done away with next year, the students being designated by the filles, 1st yearmen, 2d yearmen, &c.

The exercises of Commencement week opened with a scientific and technological address by the Hon. Wim. J. McAlpine, in Cornell Library Hall. Mr. McAlpine was formerly State Eagineer of New-York, and is one of the first engineers of the world. He was introduced by President White, who mentioned that it had been decided that an address of this character was to form here a yearly feature of Commencement week. His theme was "Modern Engineering," and, coming from a gentleman of such practical engineering talent and reputation, was of the most comprehensive and interesting character. A respectable and tenes composed of the members of the

Last evening (Tuesday) Charlton T. Lewis of The New York Evening Post delivered an address to the candidates for degrees. His theme was "The Limits to Radicalism." He mentioned that the subject has been selected for him by President White, upon whom he threw the responsi-bility of the choice. He compared the terms Radicalism and Conservatism, defining the former as the resoluto subjection of life and thought to principles, the latter as clinging to established customs and usages; the radical would test the latter by the touchstone of principle, the opinion will be led ultimately by men of culture, and thus not be, as it is now, a creature of caprice. The ad-dress was of the most thoughtful and practical character, peculiarly adapted to the needs of this graduating class, who, without exception, politically and otherwise are all who, without exception, politically and otherwise are all radicals.

An excellent feature, also, of the University, akin to West Point is the Military Department, with Major J. H. Whittlesey, U. S. A., as commandant. This Department is based upon a law of Congress in the act of endowment providing for military instruction at Cornell University. The study of military instruction at Cornell University. The study of military science is optional, but subjection to the discipline and obligation of every able-bodied student to attend the drill exercises will be enforced next year. Power is vested, however, in the President and Paculty to grant special exemptions. The corps of "Cornell Cadets" which in all itsessential particulars has copied after the U. S. Military Acadeasy, will be divided into two battalions, the right wing at the University, and the left quartered in town. The practical military and other exercises are so ordered as to subserve all the ends of a complete system of physical culture—an object of vital moment during the critical period of life, usually comprised within collegiate years.

During the past year, on account of the somewhat confused state of affairs, it has been impossible to carry out fully the military organization of the students. This will be changed in the coming year, when every student will be enoughled, wear the prescribed uniform of cadet gray, and drill for one hour on three days of the week. The arms for equipment have been granted by the State. The McGraw Building, of which the foundation is laid, is another example of the contagiousness of generosity. The Hon. John McGraw of this city announced some time since to the managers that he would build the center building of the three in the original plan. The design of

Is another example of the contagiousness of generosity. The Hon. John McGraw of this city announced some time since to the managers that he would build the center building of the three in the original plan. The design of the structure gives promise of one of the most imposing buildings in the State. It is to stand midway between the two already up, and is to consist of a four-story center with flanking where three stories high, and a tower, 120 feet from the first floor, surmounting the main building. The whole length will be about 220 feet, with a proportionate depth. The architecture is to be Florentine, with French roof; the building material is of the same stone as the others, the bine timestone of the region; the dressings to be the Onondaga gray imentone. In the tower the chimes will be placed, with the addition of the large bell to be presented to-day, to be connected with a clock over the shinne chamber. The interior will contain, on the lower floor, a large sudiepce room to be used at present for the chapel, capable of seating 1,500 persons. The rooms over this, on the two stories, will be need for the library, with galleries, alcoves, &c. In the wings there are to be lecture rooms, one over the other, dimensions about 40×20 feet, with the rooms for the librarian and chime-ringer. These comprise the leading features of the building. The cost of the whole will be probably $6,000, and the construction of which is a most generous act upon the part of Mr. McGraw. It is expected to be completed by September, 1870.

ADDRESS OF THE HON. JOHN STANTON GOULD

ON LAYING THE CORNER-STONE OF THE ON LAYING THE CORNER-STONE OF THE LIBRARY OF CORNELL UNIVERSITY.

The work which we have this day assembled to perform fills our hearts with joy and gladness. We feel instinctively that it will promote the glory of God and the welfare of man; that it will benefit as in our day, and our children after us in their day, and that a constantly agrinouting stream of blessing will continue to flow from this foundation until time shall be no longer. It is designed to bring together within these walls the records of all the knowledge that has been accumulated upon the earth, so that the follower of every useful calling may here find all the light which has been cast upon his chosen pursuit by every preceding inquirer. When we attempt to conceive the vast annunt of power which this accumulated knowledge will bestow upon us, the imagination is paralyzed with the magnitude of the conception. Sr. Lytton Bulwer wrote: "My Novel" to prove that knowledge was not power, but his spite of his brilliant imaginings, the truth of the old apothegm remains as deeply enshrined in the popular heart and mind as it ever was. No smount of ingenious reasoning can ever remove the conviction that knowledge is power, for it is the burden of all past history and the teaching of universal experience. One month ago a carpenter's shop in the city of my residence was suffering severely for want of power; only part of the machinery could be used at a time, and that portion was frequently compelled to stop and the workmen to stand idle for a quarter of an hour while the steam was accumulating. This occurred several times in a day. An experienced and intelligent engineer told the proprietors how to remedy the evil, by engineer told the proprietors how to remedy the evil, by engineer told the proprietors how to remedy the evil, by engineer told the proprietors how to remedy the evil, by engineer told the proprietors how to remedy the evil, by engineer told the proprietors how to remedy the evil, by the allowing the appearance of the his hours of their LIBRARY OF CORNELL UNIVERSITY.

The work which we have this day assemour knowledge and our power in every way, but more especially ir ejoice because it will afford a much needed impetius to our agricultural advancement. Our very existence depends upon the production of food; it is impossible fae population to increase faster than food increases. The amount and the degree of our civilization depends upon its abundance, its cheapness, and its excellence; when these are diminishing everthing that adorus and glorifles life goes backward on the dist; and if this continues, the race retrucedes to barbarism. The value of the annual production of the farms in this State about $65,000.00. When we compare the aerrage produce more on the State with the production of our best farms own of the State with the production of our best farms own of the State with the production of our best farms own of the state with the production of our best farms own of the state, we find that the Belgian farmer nearly doubles our crop, although our soil as naturally superior to theirs. The knowledge of our best farmers doubles their power of producing crops from the soil. The knowledge of the Belgian farmer gives him the power to raise twice as much from a given area, as our best farmers can raise. The bare statement of these facts is a sufficient plea for creating and diffusing a much larger amount of Agriculties. may be said of almost every article that the farmer raises. He works in the dark; he is cramped in all his efforts for improvement by the difficulty of obtaining reliable information respecting the matters which concern him most. The edding whose foundation stone we lay to day will, we trust, be a powerful means of remedying the evil complained of. And if our hopes are confrued, we cannot over-estimate the blessings which it will confer upon mankind. Fancy loves to paint its future as it stands here upon the hill-top, overlooking the bright and tranquil Cayuga, its tower pointing to the heavens, and fitly enshrining those sweet chimes, the generous and beautiful gift of one of the daughters of Ithaca, its halls and alcoves, filled with hopeful, earnest, patient seckers after Truth amid the treasures of knowledge richly garnered here. What prophet soul shall look out through the thick mists which enshroud the future, and tell us of the triumphant crowns which these young men will win and wear in the coming time, when by the rich alchemy of gonus they shall have transmutted the latent treasures of this library into the pure gold of practical utility? Well may such an auspicious occasion call together from afar the usen renowned in science and in liferature, in agriculture and mechanics, in polities and in law, who greet us with their presence and approval to-day, thace may indeed feel proud as she lies here nestled in verdure among these hills, that she has nourished in her bosom the sons who have done so much to make her name honored and revered throughout the earth as the chosen home of science and of liberal and practical art. One of whom has devised this noble University where all needed culture will be given to fit men worthly for all the avocations which they may desire to pursue in life. The other, who today provides a library which will gather into its alcoves all the wisdom of the past, and all the wisdom of the present, and which will confer innumerable blessings upon our race through all conting time. In the name of all scelers after knowledge, and especially in the name of the farmers of our country, we offer the tribute of our thanks to the generous douor for his liberal provision for their bone.

He urged that the young men of the parishes be treated with more consideration; and, in closing, said that the church and denomination which had within it the most earnest life was the one that was going to win success and influence.

At the conclusion of some remarks addressed to the graduates, he announced that a Chrir of English Literature would be established in this college at the opening of the Fall term.

It was expected that ex-President Johnson, one of whose sons is a pupil of the preparatory school, would be present, and a seat was accordingly reserved for him next that of President Grant. Owing to a detention Mr. Johnson did not reach the grounds, however, until the exercises were Just closing. His chair had meanwhile been occupied by the beautiful wife of a member of one of the foreign legations, and the ex-President was evidently well pleased with this change in the arrangements.

ACADEMY MOUNT ST. VINCENT.

Yesterday was the twenty-third annual Comsencement of the Academy Mount Saint Vincent. This institution is conducted by the Sisters of Charity. It occupies a commanding situation on the east bank of the Hudson, about a mile south of Yonkers. The buildings are very spacious and substantial. One of them, known as Font Hill Castle, was erected in 1841 by Edwin Forrest. In the year 1847, Mr. Forrest's country seat and grounds passed into the hands of that Church, whose taste has proved equal, and whose foresight superior to that of the great actor. A more lovely or more fitting spot for a young ladies' seminary cannot be imagined. On entering the large seminary cannot be imagined. On entering the large long rows of girls clad in white, with blue, red, and green searfs, first attracted the spectator's eye to the left. There is a peerless beauty about a collection of neatly dressed school girls whose powerful effect can only be compared to that of a hundred soprane voices in one of Handel's oratorios. No sole can approach it. In front were the tweive young ladies of the graduating class, also dressed in white, and crowned with flowers, who performed a melodrama, in which poetry, music, joy, and sadness commingic to interest the hearer. On the right sit the dignitaries of the Church, the Most Reverend Archbishop McCloskey, and the Right Reverend Rishop Lynch of South Carolina, in purple robes, surrounded by the most distinguished of the clercy. The valedictory having been fluished, and during its delivery, when the fair speaker bade farewell to the Sisters under whose affectionate care they had passed so many happy months and years, sobs were heard, and tears seen tricking from many a bright eye, a long procession of young ladies received gifts for proficiency and good conduct from the hands of the venerable Archbishop. In conclusion the Archbishop made a brief address, in which he very happily described the foelings with which the young ladies must be affected at the close of the year of study. After the Commencement exercises were over, there was a vast amount of hearty kiesing in the halls and anterocoms, as the young ladies met their mothers, sixers, cousins, and young lady friends. The spacious grounds of the Academy, extending over an area of 60 acres, were soon are very spacious and substantial. One of them, known as Font Hill Castle, was erected in 1841 by Edwin Forrest.

BATES COLLEGE.

LEWISTTON, Me., July 1.-The third annual Commencement exercises were inaugurated at this young and growing institution on Sunday afternoon by the preaching of the Baccalaureate sermon by President Chenev. who announced as his text, Col. iii., 24: "For ye serve the Lord Christ." This theme was working for Christ. In closing an affectionate address to the class President Cheney said: You are honored, young gentlemen, with the presence of a lady, who is about, with you, men, with the presence of a lady, who is about, with you, to receive the honors of the college. At the time of founding the College, the Trustees could see wisdom and justice, and the highest success of the College, in adopting but one rule for the admission of students, and that rule is that all persons of good moral character who pass the required examination may enter the College and enjoy its privileges. But this early decision of the authorities of the College to admit ladies as well as gentlemen to its privileges does not necessarily enter into the discussion, and certain other questions now agitating the public mind relating to the proper sphere of woman. Neither do we say, by admitting ladies to the College that we believe that the curriculum of our New-England colleges is the best for girls in general. We only say that those ladies who desire to pursue an extended course of study should not be denied such a privilege, believing, as we do believe, that woman has only to be thoroughly educated to understand from the light of reason and the Bible what her proper sphere is; and that the good sense of the educated, refined, and Christian woman will lead her to take and keep that sphere. and keep that sphere.

Speeches were also made by the Hon. James G. Blaine, Speaker of the United States House of Representatives; Gen. Frye, Attorney. General of Maine, and others. Gey. THE GREAT METHODIST CAMP-MEETING. To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: A National Methodist Camp-Meeting, on the largest scale ever known in the history of purely religious gatherings on this continent, will commence in this piace Tuesday, July 6, and continue 10 days. Already human carpenters, totally ignoring the glorious handi craft of the Great Architect, and forgetting that the woods were God's first temples, are building wooden cot-tages, tents, hower houses, pulpits, fronted by immense tages, tents, bower houses, polpits, fronted by immense amphitheaters, apartments for communities, societies and families, and edifices for the accommodation of visitors. It is expected that the gathering of the disciples of John Wesley to commemorate his life and services, and to worship God after the manner of their denomination, will not be less than 40,000 persons. The scene of this great demonstration is in full view of the beautiful Round Lake, on the line of the Rensselaer and Saratoga Railroad, widway between Troy and Saratoga Springs. The grounds are 40 acros, substantially inclosed and well watered. The distance by rail or steamboat from this city is 104 miles, from Boston 231, and from Buffalo 320.

CONCERNING P. R. R. REPORTS.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sin:Two railroad gentlemen appeared in this city from New-York on Thursday last to induce unfavor ble accounts of my report on the Pacific Railroad to be sent over the wires in advance of its publication, which, as I am advised by letter, others were employed in efforts to suppress its publication, or rather in getting newspapers not only not to publish it, but to denounce it. I am fully advised where and how, and by whom this movemen was put on foot, but I will not trouble the public with the information now. Why is it that no one can even say was put on the constructed as required by law, without subjecting himself to assentist if why all this extreme sensitiveness to discussing it! Why is it that it should be insisted, as The Post insists, that I should have looked at it through other eyes and not my own! I care not what is said by a paper about my report if twill only publish it; but, I submit it is not a fair way to treat it to suppress its publication, and then misrepresent it. However, I will trust it to the impartial judgment of the nation, knowing that truth and time will vindeate it, notwithstsnding efforts to forestall its circulation. You are aware that I neither sought nor desired the position of Commissioner, but having consented to make a trip over the road, I had only to state the facts and the law of the case. I hope I shall always be brave enough to do that when charged with any duty however formidable the opposition. Will you oblige me by publishing this note. Very respectfully, Washington, D. C., June 29, 1369.

The Cincinnati Enquirer proposes to substitute for "Decoration Day," a Contribution Day, with one day in the year set apart, North and South, for the collection of funds for the care of the widows and orphans of fallen heroes, whose wants cannot be supplied by such ceremonies as those of Decoration Day. This would be better, no doubt, for the widows and orphans, but not be of the care of the Grand Army of Radical office-hunters, so good for the Grand Army of Radical office-hunters. "Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, erry costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odor of the ointment. Then saith one of his disciples, own, which should betray him, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him, of the poor, but because he was a thief." [Phila Press.]

ANOTHER CASE OF "INSANITY." CHICAGO, June 30.—The trial of Chauncey Bailey for the murder of James L. Laird, at Napiervill Illinois, on Jau. 12. was concluded on Tuesday by a ver-dict of "Not guilty—justified by insanity." Bailey shot Laird for illicit intimacy with his wife, discovering the Laird for illicit intimacy with his wife, discovering the two together after the plot which led Mrs. Bailey to surpose her husband had left home. The trial has been a curious one. Mr. Bailey's acquittal depended on curious one. Mr. Bailey's acquittal depended on the evidence of his wife's dishonor. Mrs. Bailey, accordingly, occupied a position hostile to her Bailey, accordingly, occupied a position hostile to her Bailey, accordingly, occupied a position hostile to her busband's safety, and it was evident, throughout, that husband's safety, and it was evident, throughout, that she hoped for a verdict of guilty. Gen. Ames, commanding the Military District, made his appearance on the floor and assured the Convention of his hearty approval and unconditional support. A dispatch from San Francisco says the Democratic State Convention has adjourned sine die. It passed resolutions opposing (!) the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment, approving the rejection by Congress of the Alabama Treaty, and indorsing the State Administration. A Committee was appointed to prepare an address on Chinese Labor in California. The Philadelphia Democratic County Convention yesterday nominated for Coroner-James Stewart; Clerk of Quarter Sessions-John Ahern. The proccedings of the Convention were characterized by disorderly and ruffiauly conduct throughout. One James Dougherty, delegate, was thrust from a second story window, and was very seriously if not fatally, injured.

MOVAL OF MARSHAL COMMITTEE—THE REMOVAL OF MARSHAL BARLOW DEMANDED.

The monthly meeting of the General Union Republican Committee was held last evening, at the Headquarters, at Broadway and Twenty-second-st. President J. V. Gridley occupied the chair, and about 75 delegates were present. The resignation of Gorge Foster of the Eighth District was accepted, and Benj. F. Schaffer was admitted as a member in his stead. An amendment to the by-laws, making it the duty of the President of the General Committee to call the City and County Conventions to order, was warmly discussed, and finally adopted by a decisive majority. Charles S. Spencer, from the special committee appointed to investigate Marshal Barlow's conduct, reported that they land carefully lieard testimony which clearly showed that Mr. Barlow, in selecting his subordinates, had aimed merely to gratify himself and not to build up the party, and Mr. Spencer thereupon presented a string of resolutions emphatically condemning the Marshal for his independent course, and calling on President Grant to remove him. This report was signed by C. S. Spencer, J. F. Ellery, and J. O. Miller. A mnority report and resolution, presented by John D. Lawson, declared substantially that there was no eccasion whatever for the General Committee to interfere with the Marshal in any way. A very lively discussion enseed, in which it was argued that the Marshal had served his country nobly, and that, however much he might ignore "local organizations," there was not a single Democrat in his office. On the other hand, it was asserted that thomsands of other men had done just as much for the defense of the nation, and REPUBLICAN GENERAL COMMITTEE -THE RE-

The Fire Department was soon on the spot, but, the flames having gained considerable spot, but, the flames having gained considerable headway, were not extinguished until much property had been destroyed. The building was owned by Henry Siefke, and was damaged to the amount of about $2,500. Insured for $3,000 by the Stuyvesant Company. The lower floor was occupied as a grocery stere by Henry Siefke, ir. The stock, worth $4,000, was almost entirely runed by fire and water. Insured by the Bowery Company for $3,000. Peaks & Co., wholesaic dealers in cloth and dry goods. Officer Blanchard of the Fifth Precinct, and the watchman of an adjoining building saw a flicker-ing light in one of the fourth floor windows, and rapping vigorously at the door attracted the attention of an employe who was at work in the rear. The firemen were soon at work after the alarm was given, and extin-guished the flames, but not before $15,000 worth of stock was destroyed. was destroyed.
